Fuller in Critical State From Wounds Inflicted by Coles.

TRAGEDY NEAR TANYARD

Police Quick on the Job, and Fugitive Is Located in Hiding.

Practically everybody in south Richmond turned out yesterday afternoon following the capture of Waverly Coles, colored, who was caught by Captain Wright and Policeman Waymack fifteen minutes after he had perhaps fatally wounded Edward Fuller, also colored. The shot was fired from the rear, the ball passing through the lower part of the liver and lodging in the abdomen. Fuller was taken to the City Home hospital, where he was operated on by Dr. C. R. Robins, after receiving ambulance treatment by Dr. Harshbarger. The wound is not necessarily fatal, but is very dangerous. Late last night the negro was resting easily.

Captain Wright and Policeman Waymack happened to be near the tanyard at the further end of Twenty-second Street, when they heard the reports, and they immediately started an investigation. They found Fuller lying not far from the place where he had been shot, and there was just enough life left in him to point in the direction in which his assailant was endeavoring to make good his escape. He mumbled the name of his assailant, who was well known to the officers in south Richmond, and in a remarkably short time the fugitive was located under a house about half a mile from the scene of the shooting.

Coles claims that Fuller owed him money, and that when he asked him for it he made a motion to his hip pocket. Coles insists that his plea will be self-defense. The pistol with which the shooting was done was found near the scene.

FAKER USES NAME OF RICHMOND WHIG

Pretends to Write for Paper Out of Existence for a Quarter of a Century.

Letters addressed to the editor of the "Richmond Whig" have been received here from people in the Far West, who claim to have been deceived by a man who represented himself to be a minister from Virginia, and a correspondent of several newspapers, including the one mentioned above.

In June, it seems, the combination minister and correspondent called on a number of the leading citizens of Draper, S. C., and for the small sum of $150 offered to give them a "write-up" in the newspapers he was supposed to represent. With visions of their photographs, together with suitable inscriptions, such as "Leading Citizen of Draper," adorning the front pages of the big Eastern newspapers, several citizens readily handed over the amount asked for, and then began to watch the mails, while the meanwhile the correspondent is supposed to have moved on to the next place. At any rate he disappeared from Draper, and in the words of the victim who wrote to the editor of the Whig, "none there ever heard of him or of his papers with photographs and interviews ever came."

There is no clue in Richmond as to the identity of the fake correspondent. The Whig suspended publication twenty-one years ago, and practically none of the men connected with it is in the newspaper business at the present time. That the swindler worked the same scheme in other places that he worked in Draper is a little doubtful. And he seems to have got away with it, as reports of the capture of a crook of his description have ever been received.

RICHMOND GREAT CONVENTION CITY

Hotel Men Much Pleased With Its Popularity as Gathering Place.

ANNUAL MEETING IS HELD

Richmond Hotel Association Elects Officers for Ensuing Year.

General satisfaction over the undeniable growth of Richmond's pre-eminence as a convention city marked the annual meeting of the Richmond Hotel Association, held yesterday at Murphy's. Every hotel man in the organization expressed his pleasure at the satisfactory attendance at the conventions held in the city during the last season, and the outlook for the future was regarded as exceedingly encouraging.

Time after time since the last annual meeting has every hotel in Richmond been crowded to the limit. And yet the visitors have always been well cared for. At no time has there been a tangible complaint of meagreness of accommodations.

The future looked even better than the past to the hotel men. The season is to begin early, and already there is a long list of meetings to enliven the fall and early winter months.

Many Meetings Ahead.

Beginning this week, with the meeting of the National Association of Credit Men, conventions will be coming and going.

It is the opinion among the hotel folks that the biggest attendance of the year will be at the annual meeting of the National Association of Laundrymen, which will be held in Richmond October 17, 18 and 19. It is expected that no fewer than 2,000 members will be in the city at that time.

After the dispatch of routine business, the Hotel Association went into annual election of officers, the following being chosen: James T. Disney, manager of Murphy's, president; Oscar F. Weisiger, of the Jefferson, vice-president; Samuel T. Atkinson, of the Richmond, secretary; Felix Kegan, of the Lexington, treasurer. The executive committee will be named later.

There was no dissent from the opinion that the association has done "very valuable work for the hotel interests of Richmond."

WILL PRODUCE NEW PLAY

"Beatrice of the Cumberland" by Immaute of Masonic Home.

"Beatrice of the Cumberland," the four-act comedy drama, written by George E. Roebuck, a seventeen-year-old inmate of the Virginia Masonic Home, is well understood. Roebuck has been going on for about a week. Mr. Depe is taking the lead as Dr. Leigh, and Miss Marie Anderson, an attractive Richmond girl, as Beatrice. Herbert Curtis, recently of the Benjamin Company, appears as Billy Field, and Mackenzie, of the Home, as the villain, Mr. Jones.

Other members of the cast are well suited to their parts.

Special scenery has been designed and painted by Miss Inez Kendrick, a pupil of Harry Turberville, of the Benjamin Company. All interiors were painted from the rooms at the Masonic Home.

Raise Immense Tomatoes.

Charles Harvie, of Dykeland Farm, Amelia county, brought to Richmond during the past week a "Brimmer" tomato which weighed twenty-eight ounces. Mr. Harvie says that this is the largest tomato he has ever raised on his farm, and that he has produced many larger than the immense specimen he had with him. Dykeland Farm has been in the possession of the Harvie family for several generations.

THOMAS FINED $26.10

Railroad Man Spoke to Strange Woman at Picture Show.

Walter Thomas, twenty-six years old, who claims that he is a railroad man and has been in the Police Court yesterday morning on a charge of being disorderly in the Bijou Theatre. The principal witness against him was a woman who gave her name as Mrs. D. L. Reynolds. It was alleged that Thomas addressed Mrs. Reynolds, although she was a stranger to him, and invited her to accompany him to another show.

Mr. Kemper will be accompanied to Richmond by his family, consisting of his wife and five children.

WHO PAID FOR MELON?

Carving Knife Figures in Dispute Over Division of Pennies.

Because Tom Frye, colored, insisted that he was entitled to a larger half of a watermelon, by virtue of the fact that he contributed four of seven cents toward the purchase, Preston-Smith, his comrade, flashed the carving knife in pugnacious bottom yesterday afternoon, and a fight ensued. Frye could get out of his way three slices had been taken in his anatomy. The first gash severed the lower part of his chin and the others were jabs in the body.

Frye was hurried to the City Home hospital. His condition is not serious. Smith did not attempt to escape after the cutting and was arrested. Smith says now that Frye did not put in the biggest share of the purse, but that after he had given him the 3 cents Frye bought the melon for a dollar. It is unlikely that the dispute about the coins will alter the verdict that Justice Crutchfield or a Hustings Court jury will give as soon as the victim of the cutting is able to appear.

WIDOW'S WEEDS MAKE GOOD STAGE SETTING

Businesslike Methods of Skilful Almsgatherers Rake in Shekels From Compassionate Pedestrians, Who Contribute Rich Harvest of Coin.

That the grasping hand of business methods should have been thrust into the very heart of the honorable profession of alms-taking, seizing with availing hands the glimmer that has been hanging about the art, and putting it upon the basis on which the common mark of trade is founded, is enough to make high Olympus howl and shriek with pain. And yet it has been done. Not only done, but done right here in the ancient, honorable town which Bill Byrd had, among other things, the honor of founding.

For years without number there has been a combination of fat dog, accordion, beggar and beggars, or, beggarine, which has brought compassion to the hearts of countless thousands and misery to the ears of an unnumbered host. Rain or shine, hall or snow, winter or summer, spring or fall, this combination has stood upon a corner on Broad Street, and with the cruelty of the Medici has murdered, distorted and otherwise maimed the songs which have made pleasant the hearths and firesides of every home that can boast of a melodeon.

Reaped Harvest of Coin.

For countless years this combination of the lesser denominations, and the wolf has been routed from its humble cot with the regularity of a bill collector's visits. None save the dog of the combination has waked fat, but he has prospered to a state of globularity that threatens his sleek skin every time he wags his tail. The accordion has become ragged with age and slick with the pressure of many fingerings.

For so many years has the combination been intact and worked as a unit upon the compassions of the Broad Street pedestrians that it had become a fixture, and one might as well expect the City Hall to have moved to Paris.

Then came the shock that stung and shattered all the faith in the ancient profession. Two blocks up, with the same sweet smile, for was doing the same land-office business, was the beggar of the combination, and by him stood the globular dog, whose smile was like his master's, and whose skin was in the most imminent danger of bursting with glee and the fulness thereof. And the pedestrians cried: "O more!" and passed quickly on.

The child began rocking the chair, and before any one could intervene tumbled from the window to the yard below.

Dr. Ramon D. Garcia, of Twenty-seventh and Broad Streets, was called and found the child in a critical condition, with a badly fractured skull. Later the physician expressed the hope that the child would recover.
